Study Her Character.

How to manage a wife, did you say ? Well, first thoroughly understand her. Study her character harder than you ever studied any subject in your lite. When you have accomplished this strive to the best of your ability to do those things which will make her happy and studiously avoid those things that you have learned by experience will displease. If you will give her your full confidence and cuttire love, treating her as a trusted companion and seeking her coursel and advice she is very apt to be happy. Above all, treat her as your equal, and don't attempt to hide anything from her.

Be upright and honest always and never try to deceive her in any way.

Impress her with this trait: "You are both only weak mortals and therefore cannot be perfect." Let her understand you don't expect "perfectlou," only a willingness on her part to try to understand and forbear with you, as you do with her.

Such a course pursued with the average woman cannot fail to bring forth good froit and the question of "management," will solve liseif.
